FIFTY-SIX OF THE BRAZIL LODGE HERE LAST NIGHT AND VISITING DEGREE TEAM DO WORK IN INITIATING CLASS OF SIX.

REBEKAHS SERVE BANQUET

Putnam Lodge of Odd Fellows were the hosts last night to fifty-six members of the Brazil Lodge of Odd Fellows, who came to Greencastle, to visit the local lodgemen and also take charge of the work of initiating six members of a local class into the mysteries of the order.

The event was a most delightful one, more than two hundred and fifty persons, including the visitors being present. After the lodge work the members of the Rebekah Lodge served a delightful banquet to the visitors and the lodgemen.

The initiatory degree work which was given by the Brazil Lodge Degree team, was most impressing and pleasing to the local lodgemen. The six members of the class initiated last night are: William Werneke, O. L. Reeves, William Ashworth, John Ashworth, Virgil Grimes and Mr. Hutcheson.

We are well satisfied with the place here and with the citizens and business men who have treated us with the greatest kindness. O. H. BOWEN.

MORE THAN 400 ATTENDED SESSION IN HALL OF OTTO TRIBE NO. 140 TUESDAY NIGHT—VIGO, CLAY, HENDRICKS AND PUTNAM COUNTIES ARE REPRESENTED.

CONGRESSMAN RALPH MOSS

SUDDENLY STRICKEN BY AN ATTACK OF ACUTE INDIGESTION AT WASHINGTON CITY, ON TUESDAY.

RESULT OF OVER EXERTION

A special from Washington City, under date of April 2, says: "Representative Ralph W. Moss of Indiana was stricken suddenly with acute indigestion while in his committee room today. For a time he was seriously ill, but his condition improved late this afternoon and this evening he was resting comfortably. He has been ailing for some time, owing, it is believed, to overwork in investigating the Department of Agriculture."

A REGULAR CONAN DOYLE CLEW, THIS

MONON DETECTIVE, WHO IS WORKING ON ROBBERY OF SHOE SHIPMENT TO C. A. KELLEY OF THIS TOWN, IS LOOKING FOR A ONE-LEGGED MAN.

WEARS A NO. 8 SHOE

If anyone sees a one-legged tramp, wearing a new shoe, he is the fellow the Monon detectives are looking for. The one-legged man wearing the new shoe will be minus his left leg. The shoe he is wearing will be either a number 8 or 9 in size.

That is the dope of a Monon detective who was here today working on the robbery of a shipment of shoes received recently by C. A. Kelley, the local merchant. The shoes were shipped from Endicott, N. Y., and were transferred to the Monon at Wilder, from the Erie railroad. The car in which the shoes were shipped was unsealed at Wilder over night and when the shipment was checked up by Monon officials one case of twelve shoes was missing and the shoes were scattered over the car.

When they arrived here Mr. Kelley found that three shoes, all for the right foot, were missing from the case which had been opened and scattered around over the car. Two of the shoes were size 9 and one was No. 8 in size.

The Monon detective was here this morning and upon getting the facts regarding the missing shoes, he studied a moment, and then: "I have it, the thief was a one-legged man. His left leg is gone. He wears either a No. 8 or No. 9 shoe." With these words he left the store and is now looking for a one-legged tramp. The entire case of shoes which is missing probably has been lost while en route here and probably will be located.

RAYMOND HIRT ASKS DIVORCE FROM WIFE.

Raymond Hirt, son of Alfred Hirt, has filed suit in the Putnam Circuit court, asking a divorce from Frae Hirt, on the grounds of cruel treatment and abandonment. He alleges in his complaint, which was filed Wednesday morning by Andrew Durham, his attorney, that they were married January 13, 1906, and lived together until April 15, 1911.

At that time, he alleges, without his knowledge or consent, she deserted him and went to South Bend to live. He says he has seen her in Indianapolis since and also in South Bend and asked her to return and live with him, but that she refuses to do so, saying: "I never will return to you or live with you."

He alleges that after his marriage he furnished her with money with which to obtain a musical education in the DePauw Music School, and that by reason of her securing this education she is now able to earn $20 a week. He says he is a day laborer and earns only a small wage. He asks divorce and that no alimony be granted her.

CAR HITS A SLIDE IN MUD

A WEST-BOUND LIMITED MADE TRIP EVEN THOUGH THE MUD WAS DEEP ENOUGH TO BURY THE WHEELS.

CAR MAKES SCHEDULE TIME

Brazil Times: "When west-bound interurban Car No. 33, due in Brazil at 9:05 o'clock arrived this morning it presented an unusual appearance. The pilot of the car was a mass of yellow mud and the wheels, and running gears, steps and one side of the car was besmeared. The car encountered a mud slide near Hutchinson, east of Harmony, which covered the track for a depth of about three feet on the south side of the road bed.

"The car was in charge of Motorman Dearth of Indianapolis, and rather than be delayed at this point the conductor and motorman decided to plug through the mud. This was done but not without difficulty, and the mud was thrown up over the plate glass windows in the front of the car. What time was lost in going through the mud was made up so that the car arrived here about on time. After this severe test of the motors, one of them went dead when attempting to start out from the station and it was taken to the Meridian switch by the Harmony local."

A Good Attendance.

All members are urged to be present tonight and the public is cordially invited.

Parliamentary.

"This is all so sudden, Mr. Sampson," she said, with maidenly reserve, "and so unexpected, that although I confess I am not entirely indifferent to you, I hardly know what to say in reply to—"

"If you are in favor of the proposition," suggested Mr. Sampson, who, like Dick Swiveller, is a perpetual grand master, "you will please signify your assent by saying 'Aye.'"

"Aye," came softly.

"Contrary?"

"No!" thundered the old man, opening the door.

"The noes have it by a large majority," said Mr. Sampson, reaching hastily for his hat.

The Perfect Test

By Annie Hinrichsen

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"Do you really mean that you will give me no explanation?"

"I can not explain, Katherine," Carter protested. "My reason is an excellent one. Some time I can give it to you. I ask you to trust me until that time."

"We have been the best of good friends, Doane. Before the legislature convened you came often from your home in Johnsonville to Benton to see me, a distance of seventy miles. After the legislature assembled and you were in Capital City, ten miles from my home, you came once to Benton. Then you wrote me that you could not come again for many weeks, probably not until the legislature adjourns. You said there is a reason which some time I shall understand and—and you asked me to—"

"To love me and trust me," Carter broke in. "You did not answer my letter."

"Of course, I did not. When a man tells a girl he does not intend to see her again she knows it is because he does not want to. I come to Capital City every few days to see my sister, who is in a hospital here. Today I meet you by chance, and you ask me to believe that you care for me?"

"You know I love you, Katherine. Will you not trust me a few weeks? Will you not believe that my reason is a good one and an honorable one?"

"Then why not tell me?"

"I can't, dear, yet."

"Is it because you can not trust me with the reason or—because there is no reason except your desire to end our friendship?"

"I am not a cad, although you seem to think I am. I could trust you with anything in the world that I could in honor share with you. But I can not tell you this."

"You need not," Katherine's voice had become suspiciously gracious.

"Your affairs are no concern of mine."

"I met with a slight accident a few months ago," replied the boy in a voice she did not recognize, and as the elevator stopped at that moment he lifted his hat clumsily and got off. Then she saw that one of his legs was gone and that he was not one of her boys.

"The 'slight accident,'" explained the elevator man to the perturbed teacher, "was being run over by a train, having one of his legs cut off, his skull fractured and his right hand badly mangled!"—New York Press.

Unearned Praise.

He was only a poor little messenger boy.

When the young woman stepped into the elevator on the first floor of the Williamson building it was crowded with big men—and that messenger boy. In an instant the boy snatched his hat from his head.

One by one, but with shamed blushes, the men in the elevator followed suit. The young woman was not handsome, but she was neat and trim and self-possessed. Quickly she turned to the lad and said:

"You are a little gentleman—one of the old-fashioned sort!" and she flashed a wonderfully sweet smile upon him.

The child looked at her in amazement. He had been fumbling with his cap, but now he found the message he had stuck in his sweatband, took it out, stuck his cap on his head and began to whistle.

Ants Eat Through Lead Cables.

White ants are causing much trouble in South Australia in telephone cables and also in the underground electric light lines. On the lead sheathed telephone cables crosses between the circuits began to occur. Upon withdrawing some of this cable from the ducts it was found that the ants had eaten through the lead in many places. On the Sidney system of electric lighting the ants ate through the bitumen compound and then through the lead and high tension insulation next to the wire. To stop the ravages which will incur an enormous expense if not checked, arsenious oxide mixed with bitumen, a sort of pitch, is being applied to the cables. Carbon bisulphide is also being tried with the idea that the odor will drive the ants away.

Just Occurred to Him.

"It never struck me before," said Mr. Wimpleton, "but Dr. Temple stopped me this morning to tell me what a big, handsome, manly-looking fellow our son had grown to be."

"I don't see how you could help noticing it," his wife replied. "I have been aware of it all the time; but I guess a mother is more likely to look for such things than a father is."

"Oh, I've realized that Will was handsome and manly-looking, all right. You never have been any more proud of him than I have been."

"But you just said it never had struck you before."

"I mean it never struck me before how much he resembles me."

Its Suggestion.

"When I asked our new girl if she could do anything in the line of putting up vegetables she replied, 'I can can.'"

"My dear, that sounds as if she was a French chorus girl."

Good Meal Won Husband.

Newspapers from Canton, Ohio, report a romantic wedding of a poor Norwegian cook to a local millionaire, Mr. Edward Langenbach. The cook, whose name is Rosa Jansen, won her husband through her skill in the culinary art. Mr. Langenbach engaged Miss Jansen as cook, and was so delighted with the first meal she prepared that he proposed to her on the spot. The new cook was considerably astonished, but accepted him with equal promptitude. The millionaire lost no time, but immediately took out a marriage license, and the ceremony was performed an hour after the satisfactory meal had been placed on his table.—Exchange.

Neapolitan Waiter Had Shrewd Scheme to Coax More Money From Generous Tourists.

"I was in Naples when old Vesuvius broke loose last time," said an American tourist, "and the waiter at the table at my hotel was certainly pleased at the size of the tips I handed him daily. He could speak pretty fair English, and for three or four days he gave me all the information he could. One day, however, when I handed him the usual coin he looked at it in a way to make me see that he was dissatisfied."

"Anything wrong, Josa?" I asked.

"Hasn't the service been good?" he queried in turn.

"All that I could have hoped for."

"But I had looked for a little increase in the signor's generosity."

"Why, because the flow of lava has increased?"

"No, because I had a brother in a village six miles away."

"Well?"

"And the lava it overtakes him and his wife and five children and they go up what you call the spout, and I am put to expense to buy mourning for them."

"The point seemed to be well taken," said the tourist, "and I doubled the tip, but later on, as I found all the other waiters playing the same game, I wasted no more tears on the family that went up the spout and came down well roasted."

One morning Katherine Vane sat in the gallery of the house of representatives. The balloting began. Amidst the wildest bedlam the old hall had ever held, George Allerton received the vote of the entire Democratic faction and of the insurgent band and was declared the successful candidate for the senate.

Katherine pushed her way through the crowd toward the elevator. A hand touched her arm. Doane Carter, the leader of the insurgent band, almost as great a hero in that hour as the man whose election he had secured, stood beside her. He drew her into a committee room and closed the door against a clamoring mob of admirers.

"You know now why I could not come to see you," His voice was cold. He spoke hurriedly as if in haste to dispose of an unpleasant topic. "Your uncle, it was known, was using every means to secure those five votes. The Democratic candidate was also doing his best to get them. Both men are grafters and bribers. We five stood out to elect a good man. I was made chairman of our band. Every act of mine was watched by the spies of each side. Had it been known that I was going to Benton, Sherrill Vane's home, to see his niece I should have been suspected of secretly favoring his candidacy. I could not have made any one understand that he and your father are bitter enemies because your father despises his political methods. My connection with his family would have made my men suspicious of my sincerity and they might have been won by one or the other faction."

"There was more at stake than a little glory for ourselves. We were fighting to compel the assembly to elect a great man instead of a boodler. Last night the Democratic leaders agreed, since they could not elect their candidate, to share with us the honor of electing Allerton."

"Now you understand my reason. When I refused to tell you and you refused to trust me, the candidates had not been nominated, and our plans to refuse to support Vane, if he should be nominated, were still secret. I could not in honor tell you the plans of my associates."

"I understand, Doane, and I am sorry—I can't tell you how sorry I am—how much I regret my unkindness. If you were to ask me again to trust you—"

"I shall not. Since I have been proved honorable you are willing to trust me. I have given you the explanation I promised you. I do not ask you to love me. What sort of wife would you be? A woman who would have no confidence in her husband, who would not believe his word of honor unless it was supported by affidavits. He opened the door to allow her to pass out. "Good morning," he said curtly.

In the rotunda she met her uncle, the defeated candidate. For the first time in her life he spoke to her.

"Doane Carter sold out for a price," he said deliberately. "His price was Allerton's daughter. He expects to marry her. She is the reason he formed an insurgent band and elected her father."

"That is not true." There was conviction in Katherine's voice. "He elected Mr. Allerton because he was a great man, an honor to the state and not a boodling politician. Doane Carter is a man whom no price can buy."

"Good for you," laughed Carter behind her. "I hurried after you," he went on when her uncle was out of hearing, "to ask you to forgive me for being such a brute and to love me if you can. I've loved you all the time, Kate, dear, but my pride had been awfully hurt by your lack of confidence in me."

"Lack of confidence? Did I not prove that my trust in you is absolute when Uncle Sherrill could not make me suspicious or jealous by saying you loved another woman? Have I not stood the perfect test? Aren't you sure now that I trust you and—and love you?"

"Anything wrong, Josa?" I asked.

"Hasn't the service been good?" he queried in turn.

"All that I could have hoped for."

"But I had looked for a little increase in the signor's generosity."

"Why, because the flow of lava has increased?"

"No, because I had a brother in a village six miles away."

"Well?"

"And the lava it overtakes him and his wife and five children and they go up what you call the spout, and I am put to expense to buy mourning for them."

"The point seemed to be well taken," said the tourist, "and I doubled the tip, but later on, as I found all the other waiters playing the same game, I wasted no more tears on the family that went up the spout and came down well roasted."

One morning Katherine Vane sat in the gallery of the house of representatives. The balloting began. Amidst the wildest bedlam the old hall had ever held, George Allerton received the vote of the entire Democratic faction and of the insurgent band and was declared the successful candidate for the senate.

Katherine pushed her way through the crowd toward the elevator. A hand touched her arm. Doane Carter, the leader of the insurgent band, almost as great a hero in that hour as the man whose election he had secured, stood beside her. He drew her into a committee room and closed the door against a clamoring mob of admirers.

"You know now why I could not come to see you," His voice was cold. He spoke hurriedly as if in haste to dispose of an unpleasant topic. "Your uncle, it was known, was using every means to secure those five votes. The Democratic candidate was also doing his best to get them. Both men are grafters and bribers. We five stood out to elect a good man. I was made chairman of our band. Every act of mine was watched by the spies of each side. Had it been known that I was going to Benton, Sherrill Vane's home, to see his niece I should have been suspected of secretly favoring his candidacy. I could not have made any one understand that he and your father are bitter enemies because your father despises his political methods. My connection with his family would have made my men suspicious of my sincerity and they might have been won by one or the other faction."

"There was more at stake than a little glory for ourselves. We were fighting to compel the assembly to elect a great man instead of a boodler. Last night the Democratic leaders agreed, since they could not elect their candidate, to share with us the honor of electing Allerton."

"Now you understand my reason. When I refused to tell you and you refused to trust me, the candidates had not been nominated, and our plans to refuse to support Vane, if he should be nominated, were still secret. I could not in honor tell you the plans of my associates."

"I understand, Doane, and I am sorry—I can't tell you how sorry I am—how much I regret my unkindness. If you were to ask me again to trust you—"

"I shall not. Since I have been proved honorable you are willing to trust me. I have given you the explanation I promised you. I do not ask you to love me. What sort of wife would you be? A woman who would have no confidence in her husband, who would not believe his word of honor unless it was supported by affidavits. He opened the door to allow her to pass out. "Good morning," he said curtly.

DISTINCT VALUE OF PICTURES

Care in Selection and Hanging Will Be Well Repaid in Increased Pleasure Afforded.

"A room hung with pictures is a room hung with beautiful thoughts." How many of us give the right amount of careful thought in hanging pictures on our walls? Do we ever think of the pleasure and effect on ourselves of the paintings or prints that are constantly before our eyes?

"That chromo makes me wild," says one protesting esthetic woman, as she gazes on a relic of the barbarous age in art. It is a vividly colored print of a very old and very ugly Juliet leaning over the balcony in the arms of a Romeo who would not take a prize for anything except climbing up a vine. The walnut frame is old and matches the execrable "whatnot" of our mothers' time. The whole thing is unpleasant, badly drawn, badly colored and absolutely out of place, and yet it hangs on, simply because some dead aunt saw fit to give it at an anniversary!

Pictures should please. They should educate and elevate. They should be of the good painters. How rich is the treasure from which we can choose! How wonderful are the modern reproductions at ridiculously little cost!

Begin now to tear down the meaningless prints that speak nothing to you. Hang upon your walls restful, beautiful pictures that will have just as much effect, psychologically, on your nerves, your mind, your soul, as the companions of your hours.

PHILOSOPHIC TURN OF MIND

Not Many Would Have Described Misadventure in the Terms This Boy Used.

As Miss Easton got into the elevator at a certain big school house the other morning she saw a boy, whom she was sure was one of "her boys," standing in a corner. He had a pair of crutches on which he leaned heavily, and Miss Easton, who knew she had seen him sound and well only the day before in one of her classes, exclaimed in amazement:

"Well, well, what on earth are you doing with crutches?"

"I met with a slight accident a few months ago," replied the boy in a voice she did not recognize, and as the elevator stopped at that moment he lifted his hat clumsily and got off. Then she saw that one of his legs was gone and that he was not one of her boys.

"The 'slight accident,'" explained the elevator man to the perturbed teacher, "was being run over by a train, having one of his legs cut off, his skull fractured and his right hand badly mangled!"—New York Press.

Unearned Praise.

He was only a poor little messenger boy.

When the young woman stepped into the elevator on the first floor of the Williamson building it was crowded with big men—and that messenger boy. In an instant the boy snatched his hat from his head.

One by one, but with shamed blushes, the men in the elevator followed suit. The young woman was not handsome, but she was neat and trim and self-possessed. Quickly she turned to the lad and said:

"You are a little gentleman—one of the old-fashioned sort!" and she flashed a wonderfully sweet smile upon him.

The child looked at her in amazement. He had been fumbling with his cap, but now he found the message he had stuck in his sweatband, took it out, stuck his cap on his head and began to whistle.

Ants Eat Through Lead Cables.

White ants are causing much trouble in South Australia in telephone cables and also in the underground electric light lines. On the lead sheathed telephone cables crosses between the circuits began to occur. Upon withdrawing some of this cable from the ducts it was found that the ants had eaten through the lead in many places. On the Sidney system of electric lighting the ants ate through the bitumen compound and then through the lead and high tension insulation next to the wire. To stop the ravages which will incur an enormous expense if not checked, arsenious oxide mixed with bitumen, a sort of pitch, is being applied to the cables. Carbon bisulphide is also being tried with the idea that the odor will drive the ants away.

Just Occurred to Him.

"It never struck me before," said Mr. Wimpleton, "but Dr. Temple stopped me this morning to tell me what a big, handsome, manly-looking fellow our son had grown to be."

"I don't see how you could help noticing it," his wife replied. "I have been aware of it all the time; but I guess a mother is more likely to look for such things than a father is."

"Oh, I've realized that Will was handsome and manly-looking, all right. You never have been any more proud of him than I have been."

"But you just said it never had struck you before."

"I mean it never struck me before how much he resembles me."

Its Suggestion.

"When I asked our new girl if she could do anything in the line of putting up vegetables she replied, 'I can can.'"

"My dear, that sounds as if she was a French chorus girl."

The KITCHEN CABINET

EXT to a sense of humor, which is the sanest and most certainly available means of escape, mere physical absence has its advantages.

EMERGENCY DISHES.

When unexpected company arrives and a meal must be furnished in a short time, it is well to have for such occasion a shelf of foods that can be quickly prepared. One may can at home chicken or sausages and other meats, which can be quickly reheated and served.

The soups, canned and in tablet form are easily available, and a salad of apples and nuts is one of the materials which are usually in the store-room.

A dessert may be of cakes or cookies with a dish of preserves, or a pudding can be made and steamed in twenty minutes, served with a sauce made from the juice of the fruit used in it. For example, a most delicious little steamed pudding steamed in cups is made as follows:

Sift a cup of flour with two teaspoonsful of baking powder and a little salt; mix with rich cream to make a soft dough; drop a little in greased cups, add a tablespoonful of canned cherries and another spoonful of dough. Steam for fifteen minutes, setting the cups into boiling water and keeping them closely covered. A sauce made of the cherry juice thickened and a little butter added for richness is very good, or cream is better. Remove the puddings as soon as done, for longer boiling makes them soggy.

The serving and service of a meal is fully as important as the food provided. An elaborate meal put on to the table without rhyme or reason is not nearly so pleasing as a simple meal well served by a calm and happy hostess.

Cold meats, like roast of beef, may be quickly served if one has at hand some of the good sauces to use as a garnish and seasoning for them.

A tomato or two or a can of tomatoes seasoned with onion, pepper and a little green or canned red pepper, a bit of parsley, made hot with cayenne and poured over nicely sliced beef and allowed to simmer with it gently for fifteen minutes is a dish fit to serve before a politician.

Pickles, peanuts and green peas served on slices of orange (peel and all), make a most attractive looking salad and taste as well.

To the Tax Payers of Putnam County

Notice is hereby given that the taxes levied for State, County, School, Ditch and other purposes, in Putnam County, Indiana, are due and payable at the Treasurer's office of said county, in the City of Greencastle, in full, or at the option of the taxpayer, one-half including Road Tax in full, on or before the first Monday of May, 1912, and the remaining one-half on or before the first Monday of November, 1912. When so much as one-half of the taxes charged to a taxpayer are not paid on or before the first Monday in May, then the whole amount will become due and delinquent, and the penalty attached.

Road Tax Receipts must be presented on or before the first Monday in May as the Road Tax is all included in the first installment. Road Receipts WILL NOT BE TAKEN in payment for second installment of Taxes.

The Treasurer will not be responsible for penalties and charges on delinquent taxes, resulting from any omission of the person paying such tax to state definitely on what property in whose name and what township or corporation it was assessed.

The treasurer cannot make reduction in taxes, and cannot refund money after once paid in. All errors must be corrected by the auditor.

Examine your receipt before leaving the office, and see that all your property is described.

Particular attention: Those who have lands and lots or other property in more than one township, must see that they have a receipt in full.

Call for property in name of owner, March 1, 1911. Tax duplicates are made up on that day and never change.

We desire to take this opportunity of asking the taxpayers to pay their taxes before the last days of taxpaying. Especially do we urge those who are interested in estates that are to be divided, or may pay part or all the taxes assessed in other names, or may have a question regarding their own assessment of taxes. It takes time to explain and adjust these matters. We cannot do this satisfactorily with the limited time of the last few days of taxpaying.

POULTRY HOUSE FOR FARMER

Expensive and Elaborate Structure is Not Necessary, but Dry, Well Ventilated One Is.

(By J. W. GRIFFIN.)

The size of our home poultry-building is 16x40 feet, 6 feet at the front eave, and 7 at the rear eave, and 8 feet at the comb. The floor should be the natural earth if the house is located on a well drained place. If not, there should, of course, be a plank floor.

For the convenience of the keeper, the building should be divided into three rooms in the front part; the hallway at the rear should run the entire length of the building. The hallway is 4 feet wide; this will leave the three rooms 12x13 feet.

The partitions between these rooms should be made solid two and one-half feet high. The rest of the partition can be of poultry-wire netting.

The upper part of the partition between the hallway and the rooms is made of wire netting. In the hallway we keep the supply of food for the poultry, and a few barrels of road-dust that we gather up during a dry time in the summer. This is for the dust-boxes during the winter, when the hens should not be out on the cold ground.

The watering and feeding troughs are set along the slatted partition, just inside the hallway; the chickens reach through between the slats for their food and water.

The nests are placed on a platform just above the slatted part of the partition, and the dropping-board is placed on the nest-boxes, and the perches on the dropping-boards.

The platform for the nests, the dropping-boards, and the perches are put in in divisions, three of 13 feet each. This facilitates the cleaning as all of the interior arrangements are removed at housecleaning-time, which is twice a year—spring and fall.

This is the general cleaning time; the pens are cleaned each week, and the dropping-boards each day. The manure saved by cleaning the dropping-boards each day from a hundred hens pays handsomely, not only in the value of the manure, but in keeping the house clean. The boxes are each one complete within itself.

The openings of the curtain windows are covered with poultry netting. The house is made perfectly tight except the curtain windows. There is a ventilator in each end at the gable for summer ventilation.

The floors of the pens should be covered with cut straw, or better still, dry leaves gathered in the fall and stered away to be used through the winter.

The grain food when scattered in these leaves or straw gives the fowls the much needed exercise. The dry wash-floors and meat-scrapers, etc., are fed in the troughs.

Poultry House.

The interior should be thoroughly sprayed with lime-and-sulphur solution. Use equal parts of lime and sulphur in making the whitewash and you will not be troubled with lice, chiggers or mites that trouble the poultry.

Corrective for Overeating.

Charcoal is an excellent corrective of the evils of injudicious overfeeding, and is also a good remedy in bowel disorders in poultry. Having wonderful absorbent powers, especially for gases, only a small quantity should be put into the feed hoppers at a time on account of its absorptive nature.

It should be kept in a thoroughly dry vessel with a close-fitting cover, so as to exclude the air. If charcoal is heated well before given to the poultry, it will have a tendency to drive off the impurities which may have become absorbed, and it will be equal to fresh charcoal.

Keep Off the Grass.

Little chickens should be kept off the grass as much as possible, when it is wet with dew. The hen should be well fed and watered, so that she may rest content in the coop; then if the little ones range far enough on their own account to get damp, they have a dry mother to return to and will take no hurt.

FASHION IN FOOTGEAR

SEASON'S STYLES PRACTICALLY DECIDED UPON.

High Boots, Presumably of White Leather, Are to Be Worn This Summer—Colonial Type of Shoe Is Retained.

Just now everything is unsettled as to the question of dress, but fashion in boots and shoes seem to be decided upon.

In shape, the comparatively short vamp and the rounded toe will be preferred to the long and exaggerated toe. The heel will be smart medium rather than the Louis or the Cuban, and fashion will at the same time favor the former rather than the latter style. At present it is expected that the low shoe will be worn in preference to all others, and this, of course, means that fine silk and embroidered stockings will be in vogue.

The suggestion that high boots will be worn in summer is made quite seriously, but this can apply only to white, for black or brown leather boots are much too hot and uncomfortable to be really tolerated for summer wear. In any case, preparation has been made for the continued popularity of the "pump" shoe, and, though even last summer this became very common, it is not expected that the well dressed will reject its comfortable neatness because it has become so common.

For want of a better name the shoe that is likely to be fashionable is called "Cromwellian." It is really the colonial type of footwear, with a few new touches. Many women think that this type is the nicest of all shoes, and will be delighted to know that it is to give its smart and dressy finish to the summer toilet. In lace and suede and in patent leather we are to have the shoe with a tongue—which is to be somewhat broad and short—and between the vamp and the tongue may be a buckle, a ribbon tie or an ornament in the form of a stud.

You will see this shoe in black and in tan—it is delightful in tan lace with steel ornaments—and also daintily created in white, silver and Quaker gray, mauve and green.

VEILS ARE OF MANY KINDS

Fringed Style Is to Be Worn, Principally on Account of Its Newness—Other Dainty Designs.

It is not probable that a great many women will care to wear fringed veils, but their newness and uniqueness will very likely appeal to the woman in search of something different. In the same class come veils with the design omitted where the veil fits over the face—and this at least has a certain common sense point to commend it, for it is surely less trying to the eyes.

The very filmy, cobwebby meshed veils seem quite springlike, and these are usually quite becoming. The fine, closely woven ones are very pretty. Sometimes they have chenille dots to vary the monotony of the weaves and the dot may be a tiny, pinlike affair, or one the size of your little finger nail.

Black lace veils with flower designs are very dainty. The background is usually quite filmy and sheer, with the floral design standing out more boldly. Fillet lace veils are also new and fashionable.

And did you know that you could judge the becomingness of a veil by trying the meshes over your arm, just above the wrist?

ELABORATE HAIR DRESSING

Charming Theater Coiffure of Pearls, Silver and Lace.

Evening Muffs.

A distinct novelty of the present season is the evening muff. The success of the muff as an accompaniment of the evening toilette is partly due to the fact that gloves are not considered as indispensable as formerly.

Charmingly pretty are the new full dress muffs and of a decidedly more frivolous appearance than those intended to brave the elements.

Chiffon and mousseline de soie compose some fetching models.

Evening muffs are nearly always accompanied by a scarf to match. Some women have a set to wear with each evening costume, while others have them made of combined materials so that one set will agree with several frocks.

Strips of such precious furs as chinchilla, sable and ermine, separated by strands of silver or gold lace, make luxurious evening scarf and muff sets.

WHAT "CROP ROTATION" DOES

One of Simplest and Most Practical Ways by Which Income of Farm May Be Increased.

The rotation of crops is one of the simplest and most practical ways by which the income of the farm may be increased without greatly adding to the cost of operation.

The rotation of crops is the alternation of the three general classes of farm crops; namely, grain crops, grass crops and cultivated crops, so that a crop from each of the three classes will appear on each field at least once during each cycle of the rotation.

Under "grain crops," such crops as wheat, barley, flax and millet may be classed, in their relation to the soil. Millet, though grown for hay, has practically the same effect on the soil as a grain crop. These crops deplete the soil of vegetable matter, allow weeds to grow, and have a tendency to deplete the productive power of the land.

Under "grass crops" may be included timothy, bromus and the clovers. Though the clovers are not true grasses, they have heavy root systems, and add vegetable matter to the soil. The clovers also add nitrogen to the soil; but their chief value in a rotation seems to be due to the fact that their heavy root-systems fill the soil with vegetable matter, thus making it more hospitable to plants.

Under cultivated crops may be placed corn, potatoes and root crops. Owing to their cultivation during growth, these crops have a cleaning effect on the soil. They are, however, exhaustive of soil fertility, because the constant cultivation encourages the liberation of large quantities of plant-food. These crops leave the soil in good condition for succeeding grain crops.

PROPER CARE OF TOMATOES

Trimming of Vines in Mid-Summer Will Greatly Increase Yield—Experiments in Maine.

Very few amateurs practice trimming tomato vines, but if this is done in mid-summer the yield of fruit is very greatly increased.

Experiments at the Maine experiment show that the increase due to trimming reached from 6 to 50 per cent, and the gain by weight was very marked. In one instance reach 53 per cent.

The plants were grown under ordinary field culture and they were started in the greenhouse April 1, planted in the field June 1 and headed back July 24, August 8 and September 5.

At each trimming the leading branches were shortened about six inches and most of the side shoots below the first clusters were removed, the others being shortened, and the sunlight was thus freely admitted.

Training tomatoes on wires to run from five to ten feet high is becoming a common practice. This method increases the yield as the sunlight reaches all of the fruit and makes picking much easier.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Kaffir corn makes good silage. Keep the manure spreader busy. Why not try a patch of alfalfa this season?

Plow the garden deep when you plow it. A true saying: "A good garden is half the living."

Flax is a plant that does well on a variety of soils. The well drained garden has many things in its favor.

Millet hay, to give the best results, must not get too ripe. A good gardener will not be content with raising one crop a year.

The careful stockman gives his manure spreader daily exercise. Grasshoppers may be materially decreased by winter or early spring disk-ing.

Rhubarb is one of the standard garden crops in the vicinity of large cities. The green food problem in winter isn't much of a problem if there is any alfalfa hay on the place.

All the kernels of an ear of corn are approximately of the same composition, but different ears vary considerably. Experienced onion growers do not advise nor follow the practice of planting onions on raw or new land as a first crop.

Consider the clovers. It often means the difference between failure and success. The clovers are almost indispensable in the farm scheme. The sooner manure is spread in the field, the smaller the loss of fertility incurred and the smaller the amount of labor required to handle it.

The common disk harrow is more generally used than any other implement to cultivate alfalfa, and when properly adjusted does good work.

One on the Captain.

A woman who was about to start on a trip to the southern part of the world was advised to be sure to look for the equator. On board the vessel, she approached the captain and told him she would be greatly obliged if he would point out the equator to her. After a while he told her they were drawing near, and gave her the use of his telescope. Pulling a hair out of his head, he held it in front of the telescope and said to her: "There is the equator. Can you see it?" "Oh, yes, yes," said she, excitedly, "and there's a camel on it!"—Harper's Weekly.

Today the defense is introducing its witnesses in an attempt to prove that the properties are benefitted rather than damaged. The case probably will be completed tomorrow.

OLD CUSTOM IS COMING BACK

Fashionable Englishmen Are Carrying Snuff-boxes Now and Dip into Them.

The old family doctor in the '60s, who had been in London and seen Sir Benjamin Brodie, used to tell stories about his distinguished colleague and point them by taking snuff. When he entered the bedroom of a patient his beard and clothes were redolent of snuff; he would brush it off his flowered waistcoat. We now read of a return to snuffing in England; that a snuff club has been established in Leeds; that motoring favors the practice because the motorist cannot in the open enjoy a cigar.

We also read, Philip Hale writes in the Boston Herald, that snuff is bad for the nerves, and that the modern brands deteriorate quickly; that snuff is also bad for the digestion and for the nose, since it is sometimes adulterated with lime. George IV.'s snuff was sold for £400, and how long did the fragrance of it last?

In many ways this taking of snuff was a fine, courtly old habit. It accentuated an epigram; it served as an answer when speech failed; it gave weighty importance to a trifling observation. James I. did not inveigh against it in his "Counterblast to Tobacco." What more royal pretense to an actor or violinist than a gold snuff box incrustured with diamonds and filled with ducats or louis d'or? Then there were the snuffboxes with lids exquisitely painted, with the portrait of some frail beauty, or inscribed with a ribald motto!

If the practice is revived, should the pinch be taken with the left hand or the right? Some one objected to Richard Mansfield's Beau Brummel because the comedian took snuff with the right.

Should Be Worth Reading.

In Madison square she sat down for a moment. It was the noon hour and the benches were full of prisoners released from office and shop. Opposite her sat a horrible male creature, all beak and double chin, alternately whispering and toothily leering into the face of the ravishing little typewriter seated beside him.

The pretty thing was all knowing smiles and tricks and feminine wiles. Finally, tossing her head, she announced:

"Well, some day I'm going to write a book, and I'm going to call it, 'As I Have Found It! As I Have Seen It!'"

"Life as found and seen by a New York typewriter girl ought to make very entertaining reading indeed," murmured the woman to herself as she pensively turned homeward.—New York Press.

Now She Cuts Him.

He—So you lost that handsome little dog you had?

She—Yes, in a railroad accident. I was saved, but the dog was killed.

He—What a pity!—Boston Transcript.

During a Southwark inquest, in which it was suggested that an old man had slipped on a banana skin, a juror said he had been in Brazil, and there if a policeman saw a person throw a banana or orange skin on the roadway that person was at once arrested and fined or sent to prison.—London Daily Graphic.
